

Have your say on extending action against dangerous car cruising

Share your thoughts on proposals to extend the action Milton Keynes City Council is taking against dangerous and anti-social car cruising.

The city council is looking to extend the Public Space Protection Order (PSPO) for three years.

It allows the police and authorised officers to take action against vehicle-related anti-social behaviour, including street racing, reckless driving and public nuisance.

Have your say before 27 October by visiting www.milton-keynes.gov.uk/car-cruising-consultation or scanning the QR code.
